Andrew McInnes sailing Venture

Identifier: 16738

Accession #: 2104

Title: Andrew McInnes sailing Venture

Type: Image, Photograph

Subject: Vessels, Boat, Sailboat

Description: Southwest Harbor lifelong summer resident Andrew McInnes sailing Venture in the 1930s. The sailboat, co-owned with his brother Robert, was a B.B. Corninshield B Boat. Andrew didn't know that Mr. Ballard had taken the photograph until he happened to be in Grand Central Station in New York City and saw an enormous print or projection of the image advertising Maine as a tourist destination. Mr. Ballard gave him the 8x10 glass negative when they next met.

Title: Hinckley 21

Type: Image, Photograph, Negative, Film Negative

Subject: Vessels, Boat, Sailboat

Description: The Alden-designed Hinckley 21 was 286 overall and 21 on the waterline. There is some confusion during this period [1946] because the number following the model name sometimes refers to waterline length and not length overall. The Hinckley Story (p. 39).

Twenty-three 21s were built over a three-year period.

Built by Henry R. Hinckley Company

The vessel was photographed by Willis Ballard on August 6, 1945.

Description: The following information, and the photographs attached to item 15388, were contributed in January 2018 by David Vieira of Lisbon Portugal. David is the current owner of Valhalla. He has embarked on a restoration project to bring Valhalla to her former shape and rigging plan.

###

VALHALLA is a 65 foot yawl rigged ocean racer designed by John G.

Alden in 1948 and built in 1949-1950 by Hinckley Yachts, Southwest Harbor, Maine, US.

She was designed under the Cruising Club of America Rule (CCA) and has participated in major US regattas from 1950 to 1965 such as Bermuda, Transpacific / Honolulu, Annapolis to Newport races.

In 1966 she was acquired by Dr. Manuel de Mello, a Portuguese yachtsman (very active sailor in the Star Class), for racing along Portugal's local and coastal regattas.

Before shipping her to Portugal, Dr. Mello ordered a new rig and sailplan from Sparkmans & Stevens, because he favored the cutter rig (image 15388-14 shows the "new" sailplan by Sparkman & Stephens, from 1965. Item 15405 shows the original sailplan.)

In 1973 Dr. Manuel de Mello decided to stop sailing and donated "VALHALLA" to the Portuguese Navy to be used as a sail training vessel for young officers. The Portuguese Navy renamed her "VEGA." She was the star of the Navy sailing fleet together with the tall ship "SAGRES."

In 1976 she crossed the Atlantic again to participate in the U.S. Bicentennial celebrations (Operation Sail 1976) Regattas and Naval Parade in the Hudson river.

From 1973 to 2007 she had a very intense and successful training and racing career, but she started to show her age and was in need of constant care. Sadly, in 2008 she was decommissioned. The Navy had just recently taken ownership of a bigger and more modern aluminum yacht built by Jachtwerf Jongert B.V. (Medemblik - Holland). Unfortunately, since 2009 she had been in the hard (but under a tent).

The Navy itself has a very deep connection with "VEGA" and wanted her to be taken care of properly. However, the process of selling any item from the Navy is complicated, in particular when it comes to such a vessel that triggers so many emotions for so many high ranking Navy officers. Finally in the beginning of 2017, after many appeals, David Vieira was able to buy and rescue VALHALLA from an uncertain future!

Description: The automobile to the right of the vessel is a circa 1948 Jeep CJ (Civilian Jeep)

Note the peavey stuck into the ground (above the O on the DETOUR sign). A peavey is a logging tool with a wooden shaft and metal hook invented in 1857 by blacksmith Joseph Daniel Peavey (1799-1873) of Stillwater, Maine, as a refinement to the cant hook to manhandle logs on logging runs. The Peavey Manufacturing Co. is still located in Maine (Eddington, Maine) and manufactures several variations.

Jaan - Bermuda 40 Yawl

Identifier: 15141

Title: Jaan - Bermuda 40 Yawl

Type: Reference

Subject: Vessels, Boat, Sailboat

Description: The Bermuda 40 was designed by Bill Tripp and built by Henry R. Hinckley in fiberglass. Production began in 1959 [She] is a centerboarder, a major reason for its longstanding appeal. Though not terribly beamy by today's standards, the B 40s 11-foot, 9-inch beam is substantial. Similarly, the interior is not considered very spacious by today's standards, but it had the room of a 1960s wooden 50-footer! It is no surprise that a combination of Hinckley quality and Tripp seaworthiness produced a boat that boasts the longest-running production span of any fiberglass auxiliary sailboat 32 years when hull #203 was launched in 1991 - Heart of Glass: Fiberglass Boats and the Men Who Made Them by Daniel Spurr, published by International Marine / McGraw Hill, 2000, p. 160-169.

Rose - Ketch

Identifier: 14080

Title: Rose - Ketch

Type: Reference

Subject: Vessels, Boat, Sailboat

Description: In 1982, I built a twenty-eight-foot boat called the Rose for Peter Godfrey. She was based on L. Francis Herreshoffs design for the Rozinante, which is called a canoe yawl but is actually a ketch. She had a teak deck, and she was really quite a fancy boat.

Peter had Herreshoffs plans, and that boat always interested me, from way back when I first saw her in Rudder magazine and read about her as a kid. But there were some parts that I didnt like, and when I built the Rose, I had the opportunity to change those and do it my own way.

Herreshoffs original Rozinante was designed to be built with a skeg that came straight down from the deadwood. I changed that and made the boat with a built-down keel. That gave her a wineglass shape and made her much stronger.

I didnt like some of Herreshoffs way of fastening things together either, like fastening the keel on with lag screws. So I used bolts. I made the boat a little heavier, too, but the top of her looked the same. - Ralph Stanley : Tales of a Maine Boatbuilder by Craig S. Milner and Ralph W. Stanley, published by Down East Books, Camden, Maine 2004, p. 100.

Ticonderoga - Bermuda Ketch

Identifier: 14031

Title: Ticonderoga - Bermuda Ketch

Type: Reference

Subject: Vessels, Boat, Sailboat

Description: Bermudan Ketch Ticonderoga was designed by Lewis Francis Herreshoff, built by Quincy Adams Yacht Yard, Quincy, Massachusetts for Harold Harry Edward Noyes (1898-).

Launched as Tioga in 1936, this glorious ketch finished first in twenty-four of her initial thirty-seven races. Renamed Ticonderoga in 1946, she went on to set more elapsed-time records than any ocean racer in history. Ticonderoga held more than thirty course records in races on several oceans, surpassing even the best performances of the hard-driven nineteenth-century clipper ships. But Ticonderoga wasn't designed for racing. Her creator, L. Francis Herreshoff, shaped her for genteel "afternoon sailing," giving her uncommon elegance of form with a clipper bow, elliptical transom, raked rig, gilded garnish, and a bathtub. It is these qualities of unsurpassed opulence and beauty, combined with her astonishing speed, that have made Big Ti so incomparable. - Ticonderoga: Tales of an Enchanted Yacht by Jack A. Somer, published by W. W. Norton & Company, 1997.

Ticonderoga was 720 x 160 with a 710 draft an elegant and very fast ocean-going racing yacht. The boat has raced across the Atlantic and Pacific, the Caribbean and Mediterranean, and along the coasts of three continents for decades. She won the Transpac race from San Francisco to Honolulu in 1963 and 1965 (raced by owner Robert Johnson) and was winning important races up to the 1970's.

Herreshoff carried out his lines to suit the flow of water and the eyes of the beholder. - A Life in Boats: The Years Before the War by Waldo Howland, p. 118, published by Mystic Seaport Museum, 1984.

73-FOOT YACHT IS READY

SOUTHWEST HARBOR, Me., May 15 (AP)—The seventy-three-foot Venturer, one of the world's largest racing yachts, was launched today at Hinkley's boat yard.

The sleek mahogany-hulled craft was built for Harry G. Stratton of Wilmington, Del., and Martha's Vineyard at a cost of about $1,350,000. When it goes to sea the racing line property will be represented An outlay of $100,000.

The craft weighs forty-three tons and has a keel ballasted by eighteen tons of lead. Its overall length is 73 feet 3 inches, its beam is 20 feet 6 inches, at the water line. It has a beam of 15 feet 5 inches and a sail area of 2,482 sq. feet. The Venturer has an eighty-horsepower diesel engine, and accommodations for four-teen.
