R.B. Jackson [Richard Benson Jackson (1893-1959)] is having a building erected on his lot lately purchased from P.L. Sargent. A filling station and other conveniences will be established there, and the extensive grounds opened as a parking place. This will be a great convenience to the customers of the Jackson market. The Ellsworth American, Wednesday, April 15, 1936.

"In the 1930s and 40s, Jackson's Market of Southwest Harbor sent a boat and operated a weekly market on the old steamboat wharf [on Little Cranberry Island] during the summer. In addition to meat and vegetables, a youthful stamp collector could find a small envelope of stamps inside each package of Brookfield butter." - A History of Little Cranberry Island, Maine by Hugh L. Dwelley, published by Isleford Historical Society, 1990, p. 114.

In 2017, Christina's Gallery & Past Treasures, was located in the building once occupied by the Jackson Market.
